General New Rochelle History	There is no up-to-date, comprehensive history of New Rochelle. The single most complete source is Herbert B. Nichols' Historic New Rochelle, written in 1938 for the celebration of New Rochelle's 250th anniversary. Three of the standard histories of Westchester County - those by French, Scharf, and Shonnard and Spooner - are also sources of New Rochelle history. Morgan Seacord's Historic Landmarks of New Rochelle is also a good starting point for general history of New Rochelle. Nichols, Herbert B Historic New Rochelle. 1. History of Westchester County, New York. French, Alvah P., Lewis Historical Publishing Company, Inc. 1925 v.1 & 2
LH 974.727 F887.

The first eleven chapters of French's history cover various periods of the county's history - discovery and settlement, the colonial era, the Revolutionary War period, etc. - up to the end of the nineteenth century. The next thirteen chapters are "specialized histories: - transportation, education, medicine, agriculture, clubs and societies, and so on. This is followed by chapters on Westchester towns and cities. Two chapters, 29 (pp. 607-611) and 38 (pp. 752-757) deal with the history of New Rochelle. Chapter 29 provides a brief account of the founding of New Rochelle, a list of city officials, an account of the 225th anniversary celebration, and a discussion of some of the city's public buildings, including the library. Chapter 38 is a hodge-podge of information, with paragraphs on Tom Paine, New Rochelle during the Revolution, business and professional interests in 1885, government, Glen Island Park, early town records, and a list of Huguenot settlers. Much of the information on New Rochelle appears in the "specialized histories," so it is essential to use the index in volume II when researching New Rochelle in

The next four chapters deal with the legal profession, the medical profession, writers and literature, and government, respectively. Following that are chapters on the various cities and towns. Chapter 16 (pp. 685-701) deals with New Rochelle. It focuses on the settlement and early history of New Rochelle, descriptions of some of the older houses, an account of some of the early churches, and a discussion of early schools. A four page biographical section concludes the chapter. 3. History of Westchester County. Shonnard, Frederick, and Spooner, W.W. Harbor Hill Books c. 1909, reprinted 1974. Photographs	The New Rochelle Photograph Collection is made up of over 1,000 photographs donated by Dominick Bruzzese, the Huguenot-Thomas Paine Historical Association, and individuals. In 1988, these photographs were reproduced on acid-free paper with funds provided by a Discretionary Grant from the New York State Program for the Conservation and Preservation of Library Research Material. These reproductions are filed in five notebooks according to subject (for example, churches, clubs, streets, business, and the waterfront). There is also an extensive index for the collection. NRPL has another approx. 1,000 vintage photographs that have not been reproduced or indexed, and about 500 glass plate negatives that have not been printed, reproduced, or indexed.
Postcards	NRPL has a collection of over 300 vintage postcards.
